Dear Commissioner Henny,

I'm sure you hear this from many sources, but I'm hoping one more letter might just be the one that will cause more steps to be taken to ban human antibiotics from being put in animal feed.

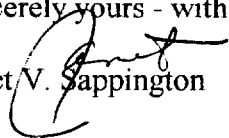

With all of the other pollutants in our air, soil, and water, having antibiotics in animal feed should be considered as another threat to human well being.

More and more people are aware and concerned not only for our generation but for the future of our kids and grandkids and beyond. The time is at hand to start more protective measures.

Human antibiotics should be for humans when their health demands their use and not to aid animals to grow unnaturally.

Thank you for your time and consideration and for your actions towards finding a remedy for this problem not only in the USA but in other countries where we import foods.

Sincerely yours - with concern,

Janet V. Sappington
